

School Improvement Standard
(Culture of Continual Improvement)

A quality school develops and maintains an externally evaluated process and plan for school improvement. Goals resulting from the evaluation process should include intentional targets for achievement which are measureable and sustainable and contain objectives for maintaining and fostering a culture of continuous improvement, collegiality, and learning.

- How can the school improvement initiatives become “personalized” at the school level?
- What can be done within our system to “truly” know every student by name and academic need?
- From a student perspective, how does CORE (Intentional integration of Arts and Academics with a school-wide theme at the center) enhance their learning and achievement?
- From a teacher perspective, how does CORE (Intentional integration of Arts and Academics with a school-wide theme at the center) enhance student learning achievement?
