

Historiography

- Traditionalist:
 - ▣ King and Bennett embraced far-reaching political and economic change in order to move the nation out of the Depression and did so effectively.

- Revisionist
 - ▣ King and Bennett's reforms were remarkably limited and relied on political repression.

- Conservative
 - ▣ King and Bennett's economic success in getting Canada out of the Depression shows the market-oriented conservative action is the best remedy to a Depression.